Announcement: PLATO 2.0 Science Conference

The Planetary Transits and Oscillations of stars, PLATO 2.0, mission was selected by ESA as its third medium class mission with a launch date expected for 2024. PLATO 2.0 will build on the foundations provided by CoRoT and Kepler and the forthcoming TESS and CHEOPS missions allowing detailed characterisation of nearby habitable zone terrestrial planets. This conference will describe the mission and highlight the potential of PLATO 2.0 science in the next decades.

When: December 3 – 5, 2014

Where: Catania, Italy

A second announcement providing registration details and further information will be distributed soon.

Upcoming events:

July 16/17: PLATO 2.0 Kick-off Meeting

March 2016: Mission Adoption & IPC approval
